FUNDAMENTAL LEXICON IN THE FIRST EDITION

210. Facciolati, Jacopo and Egidio Forcellini. Totius latinitatis lexicon. Consilio et cura Jacobi Facciolati, opera et studio Aegidii Forcellini. Padua: typis Seminarii, apud Joannem Manfrè, 1771. 4 volumes complete, large folio full-leather with gilt trim and leather spine labels, ex libris gilt lettering on the front covers. Backstrips are chipped and fragile, and four of the hinges nearly detached. The inner text blocks are on sound paper with wide margins. A rebacking candidate for this scarce lexicographical undertaking. FIRST EDITION. Facciolati (1682-1769) and Forcellini (1688-1768) were both philologists and lexicographers at Padua, the latter being the student and later collaborator of the former. Forcellini spent forty years reading all of the Latin classical writers, plus studying inscriptions, coins, and medals, in order to accumulate the Latin vocabulary included in this monumental enterprise. Their editorial work on a 1719 "Calepinus" had convinced them of the need for a totally new Latin lexicon. The result offered here is the foundation of all modern Latin dictionaries. $1,000.00
